

The invention relates to the equipment for production of pneumatic tires and is intended for covers vulcanization. A moulding consists of the lower half-moulding on which radially movable sectors and sector-carriers for moulding tire tread are located and the upper half-moulding, movable in axial direction, fastened in the upper steam chamber on a moulding ring for the second bead, together with a locking ring.