

The invention relates to the devices which do possible the regular sexual life at the irreversible forms of human impotence. An erektor has a mechanism for placing with the element for control of sulcus coronarius width, made as a collar.