

The inventions relate to the equipment for impression of relief images on the paper and can be used for obtaining the impressions of business stamps, trade marks, emblems and other figures. A press contains a housing connected with a base, a changeable printing unit installed in the housing with one die being mobile toward the side of another die, lever drive of printing unit hingedly connected with housing, opening and means for basing of printing unit.