

An air distributor of jigs includes a housing with inlet and outlet chambers, in each of which valves are installed which close the openings connecting said chambers with air chamber of jig. Each valve has a stock, an electromagnetic actuator, an equilibrating chamber. The stock is connected with the electromagnetic actuator and equilibrating chamber, which with the aid of the branch pipe communicates with the air chamber of jig.