

The invention relates to area of building and is intended for formation of coatings for different purposes, in particular quickly erected, light coatings for agricultural purposes (awnings for grain covering, for machinery, etc.). The method includes operations on giving its sections possibility of respective turn in plane of sheet with taking one of corners of sheet from plane of its other corners with following fixation of all the corners on supports.