

The invention relates to the medical equipment. The device contains He—Ne laser, the light guide, the electronic control unit, the adjustable support for the laser, the electronic shutter, the discrete output switch with three filters possessing the different transmittance coefficients, the discrete switch of the beam diameter containing at least three lenses with varying optical efficiencies, two-coordinate optical deflector containing two bases with the mirrors comprising the movable units.