

An ignition fuse comprises a core from black gunpowder or fuse composition inside which a central guiding thread, textile braiding and a waterproof coating are located. The central guiding thread is made from synthetic material with resulting linear density from 50 to 70 tex with unit tenacity not less than 50 gf/tex and torsion number per 1 meter from 350 to 500.