

A filter for oil cleaning contains a filtering element of rough cleaning mounted upstream of the filtering element and a bypass valve in the cavity between the internal surface of housing and the external surface of the filtering element and its cover. The present invention relates to the devices for filtering oils.