

The invention relates to the building, namely, to the production of concrete blocks, mainly units of the walls of basements in inventory metal molds. A mold includes external falsework with pan with emptiness-formers rigidly fastened on it and opening boards and a detachable internal falsework with pan, which has openings for passage of emptiness-formers, and a device for its lifting.