

The invention relates to hydro-power engineering. The appliance has support on which piston pumps are installed, with suction and supercharge valves, and deflector connected to the rods. The support is arranged as a plate with two parallel side walls and concave downwards cylindrical surface. Additionally at the support standpipes are fixed with horizontal axle installed on those at above, there with deflection from vertical to side of pumps deflector is suspended.