

Appliance for reversing traction of jet engine has rotary folds that are directly connected to movable body of the appliance. Within limits of effect of compensator levers of each fold are placed at restricting support that is additionally provided at one of levers. The invention relates to appliances for reversing traction of two-circuit turbo-jet engines.