

The invention relates to the production of pipes of different type and dimensions, mainly, to the assembly lines during their finishing, control and sorting. A process line includes a receiving rack, a loader, and process equipment connected together by transportation means, a device for inspection of pipes and end section of line with pocket for suitable pipes.