

The invention relates to ferrous metallurgy, namely to the methods for producing pellets. A method includes dosing, mixing components of charge, containing iron-ore concentrate, bentonite and co-grinded flux and wastes of metallurgical process, pelletization, drying, heating, burning and cooling.