

Hoisting device of glass of the door of motor car includes actuator with drum and rope of effort transfer for glass, and guiding element secured on the door with rotary rollers located at its ends. The moving slider is located inside the device. By rotation of drum in different directions is performed lift and lowering of glass respectively.