

The invention relates to area of machine-building, in particular to sealing elements and technology of making those, namely to means for making reinforcement gaskets of graphite. The method includes common roll of metal frame and powder of thermally disintegrated graphite, filling of pressing instrument with reinforcement band and its sealing under press in direction normal to direction of roll.