

The invention relates to the sphere of production of synthetic diamonds at high pressures and temperatures in sphere of thermodynamic stability of diamond. The carbon solvent for diamond synthesis comprises ferrum and manganese. Additionally the solvent contains silicon.