

The invention relates to metallurgical industry, in particular, to the facilities of steelmaking, and it can be used for conversion of the secondary ferrous metals. A device contains the base, mixer for storage and homogenizing of liquid cast-iron, having in a body opening supplied with a lid for the cast-iron pouring and toe for the cast-iron discharge, and also the base-mounted workings areas bearings an accessory equipment.