

The invention relates to the device for dispersing fluid media with mechanical impurities and can be used in chemical, oil industry, and also in machine building, in particular in hydraulic drives at dispersing mechanical impurities in oil. A device contains a housing with inlet and outlet channels, installed in the housing nozzle with inlet and outlet parts and an anvil located opposite to nozzle exit section, at least one opening for output of dispersed medium in the outlet channel, located aside the anvil.