

The invention relates to machine building. A wheel contains a nave hingedly installed on an axle and made in the form of a bushing with sections of thread with external detachable flanges mounted on them, located in its end areas, intermediate elements rigidly connected with carrying rim with pneumatic tire and rigidly connected with internal detachable flanges.