

The invention relates to transportation facilities, namely to the equipment or structural elements of transportation facilities and can be used for averting of unauthorized use or theft of transportation facilities. An antithief device contains a control unit of brake system and an activation element.