

The invention relates to the magnetotherapeutic devices used for early term abortion, which may be used in the ambulatory gynecological practice. The method comprises the exposure of the fetus to the non-homogenous magnetic field at the intensity of 11.9-15.9 kA/m.