

Invention relates to a medical techniques. The device comprises two leather cups, connected between themselves by unipolar joint disposed on metal plates, fixed to the cuffs, two threaded rods, connected by means of L-type plates with cuffs and connected between themselves by metal clutch, with an opportunity of moving by means of rotation of the lock nuts.