

The invention relates to agricultural machine-building. A roll-type baler contains a pickup and a conveyer, a drum, pressing belts, rollers, a compression chamber, a stretching device, an unloading valve, a taping unit, arranged on a frame, as well as a running gear and a drive. It is additionally equipped with three sections of pressing units fixed in a front part, an upper one and rear ones of the internal walls on both sides of the compression chamber.