

The invention relates to the medicine. The invention provides a method for inhibiting smooth muscle cell proliferation or restenosis in a human or other mammal subject comprising the administering to said subject a pharmaceutically effective dose of a compound of the formula (I) or (II) or pharmaceutically acceptable salts and solvates thereof.

