

The invention relates to biology and medicine, namely to experimental immunology and can be used in studying pathogenesis of various diseases.

The practice is declared for positioning inefficiency of a macrophage component of immune system in vivo by inserting a starch gel into the abdominal space of an animal. The starch gel is inserted dualfold with 5 day interval between injections, after that cytostatic is inserted.