

The invention relates to security alarm systems. The method includes information acquisition process of the state of every objects incoming by electro and radiocommunication channels and visual surveillance, its analysis, decision making of the same concrete situation appeared in each of objects, voice information transmission in the radio reporting frequency of the corresponding responsivity service which activity provides also for elimination of ensuing off-nominal situation