

Invention relates to the heat-power engineering. Lock contains a pipe bubbling openings connected to the steam-conducting and overflow conduits and established in the housing with steam-removal branch pipe, horizontal plate and outflow steam pipeline. It is equipped with a drain outlet secured on the housing, and outflow steam pipeline is located from the outer side of housing, moreover with the latter its upper end is connected under horizontal plate.