

The invention relates to water-proof structures for windows. The structure has the upper, the side and the lower flashing elements made as profiles of deformable material and forming water-proof flashing frame round window frame, at that the upper and the side flashing elements are U-like in shape of cross-section, with two prominent upward sides and lower facet made with possibility of placement in parallel to plane of the window.