

A planing machine contains upper and lower cassettes with working rolls and supporting rollers mounted in the bed, slider connected with upper cassette with a drive of displacement in the form of adjusting screws, and shock absorbers. A shock absorbers are made in the form of diaphragm hydraulic cylinders with spherical bearing surfaces and are located between cassette and slider coaxially with adjusting screws.