

The invention relates to the rotary printing machines. The paper sheet, on which the printing is produced, is passed through the impression cylinder.