

The invention relates to the field of color television. When in use of electronic beam sequential scanning across the specific bands the index signals are received, the deflecting signal for electronic beam being formed auxiliary signals with supplying them to the electronic beam predeflection system and interrupt of beam follow along the line delaying it for the short time interval in each luminiferous band.