

The invention relates to propulsion engineering and can be used in design of motors for provision of stability of those and economy of operation with maximal power. The head includes cylindrical body equipped with channels for supply of fuel mix and discharge of exhaust gases and spark plug installed in the body and equipped with rotary drive distribution slide.