

The invention relates to windmills and is intended for control of rate of rotation of blade wind wheels. Wing wheel with controller has a central gear wheel that has not less than three installed in radial positions plates with different rigidity and not less than three supports installed in the plane of hub with possibility of contact with plates.