

The appliance proposed relates to area of electromagnetic missile systems and can be used in ballistic studies, material science and plasma physics. Electromagnetic device includes capacitor collector one of plates of which through key is connected to additional connected in series first and second electrodes with rectangular cross-section.