

The present invention relates to new mixtures of bactericidal substances of increased synergistic effects, containing at least two active ingredients, and also to the method of using such mixtures for plant protection.