

The invention relates to the rolling production. Rolling is conducted by deformation of billet in the shafts with creation of variable amount of reduction and introduction between billet and shaft of the strip. The variable quantity of reduction is created by introduction between billet and shafts of one-sidedly shaped tapes of variable thickness, in this case the shafts have a constant radius.