

The invention relates to the field of processing high-molecular compounds, mainly reticulated (thermosetting) polymers, in particular, to the methods of producing the tubular articles made of epoxy polymers, which have effect of the memory of form. A method includes preparation of initial billet of the epoxy polymer of anhydrous consolidation, heating to transfer into highly elastic state and deformation in highly elastic state with subsequent cooling with retention of stressed state.