

The invention relates to testing equipment. The appliance has static breaking machine with base and with movable traverse to which are respectively connected passive and active holders for fixation of heads of tested sample and supplementary element being destroyed at given static load, this is installed coaxially with respect to tested sample and is kinematically connected to base and traverse