

The invention relates to the field of training. The training is carried out by means of recording on the information carrier by two signal channel of two and more groups of speech communications, for instance, texts in the terms of training language and their translation into mother tongue, with the next reproduction of speech communication signals transformed of reproduced signals into two different acoustic signals conforming to the left and right ears of an educable and listening through these signals.