

The invention pertains to a ventilation device wherein the air-moving unit (20) delivers at least a portion of the air in ambient air mode, pulsed at very low frequency using at least one chamber (6) of changeable volume which is connected with the room (2) by way of at least one air passage (21).

