

Invention relates to the cold rolling of strips on the continuous wide-strip mills. Method includes rolling strip with its different thickness lengthwise, additional reduction of the thickened areas of strip at decrease of the speed of rolling by displacement of adjusting screws according to the predetermined program simultaneously in all stands of the mill.