

The invention relates to the medicine. The method provides the diagnostics and treatment by previously identified operator's influencing. The operator is identified by the absence of cervical, thoracic and lumbar osteochondroses, by the practically absence of neuropsychic and cardiovascular diseases, by the presence of permanently erhythmic hand's finger-cushions. The curative influencing is carried out on human spinal column parts, which control anormally functioning organs and systems.