

The invention relates to the heat exchange equipment. A heat exchanger contains two pipes located with a clearance between them; moreover, branch pipe for introduction of heated liquid is located from the side of branch pipe for discharge of heat-transfer agent, and branch pipe for discharge of heated liquid is located from the side of branch pipe for inlet of heat-transfer agent. Pipes are made in the form of helical spiral.