

The invention relates to the equipment for processing of grain and can be used, mainly, in flour-grinding and compound feed industry for grinding of grain into the flour. A crusher machine tool includes, at least, one pair of upper-located and lower-located grinding rolls rotating in different sides, installed on the axles secured in the housing, along the line located at angle to the horizon, and also loading and unloading bunkers.