

The invention relates to measuring engineering, in particular to weight method for measurement of respective humidity of gases. Weight hygrometer includes balance. It is additionally equipped with placed on arms of balance reversing heat pumps, for instance thermoelectric batteries, with surfaces for moisture condensation, at least one indicator of balance deflection connected to reversing heat pump and block for information processing to which timer and temperature indicator are connected, and balance is equipped with damper.