

The invention relates to agriculture. A method includes foliar and root fertilizing with mineral fertilizers which is a constituent part of a water-retaining gel-like layer formed on the basis of potassium metasilicate in a soil substrate layer within the limits of the root system of the plants.