

The invention relates to the means of the individual protection. The suit contains the isolating shell representing the synthetic fabric base with external and internal polymeric coating. The polyester is used as a base, polyimide as an external coating, and polyurethane as an internal coating.