

The invention relates to atmospheric gas burners that are used for burning gaseous fuel. Gas burner has body, mixer, fire openings placed at whole length of upper part of the body and normally with respect to its long axis. Those have at least two sides that at intersection form arbitrarily small angle.