

A process for the preparation of the granulated bacterial agents comprises a growing culture of microorganisms, mixing of suspension thereof with filling agent and granulation of obtained mass. As filling agent clay minerals, preferably montmorillonite are used, which are incorporated in cultural liquid at a weight ratio of 1.2-2.0:1.0.