

The invention relates to design of combined pressure balloons. A balloon has a metal ring connected to spherical or elliptic bottoms and surrounded with outer shell. Steel ring and bottoms are welded with butt joint without reinforcement of seams, and the shell is made with thickness that does not exceed 1.5 of thickness of the ring, as circular turns of steel wire with strength not smaller than strength of the ring.